The annual Savannah Browse event continued this year on Aug. 26, despite the ongoing Covid-19 pandemic. Each year, the Office of Student Affairs (OSA) invites local Savannah businesses to meet with students and discuss hiring opportunities as well as promote themselves.

Businesses manned tables outside of the Student Union and talked to students as they passed to and from classes. The event lasted from 11 a.m.-1 p.m. and garnered decent student guidelines, it was moved outside to spread tables and people out.

Paul Bradley, Assistant of OSA, checked students in using the new LifeSafe smartphone app that screens participants for any health or covid-19 related issues before being allowed to survey the businesses.

Participating businesses included the Athletic Dept.'s GATA, the United Way of the Coastal Empire, Surcheros Restaurant, the Academic Success Center, GeoVista Credit Union, Trio Student Support Services, and the Office of Multicultural Affairs (OMA).

Businesses gave out complimentary promotional items such as banners, cups, pens, and lanyards. Some club organizations also tried to recruit members. The topic of diversity has been a subject of debate within the last year on campus and an OMA representative felt things are headed in a positive direction.

“We are being included most of the time. We partner up with other groups. You can see diversity everywhere on this campus. The students, the staff, people living in the dorms. Everyone,” Roneil Boyce, a computer science senior said.

Overall, despite a venue change and a drop in number of attendees, the Savannah Browse event was hopefully the first of many successful events OSA will be conducting this semester.

For more information regarding events on campus both physical and virtual, check out the MyInvolvement page and calendar of events.

Not only has the gym moved locations, but openings and closing times having also changed. Due to health restrictions, the gym's business hours have changed until further notice. The gym's hours are as follows: Monday through Thursday, 6 a.m.-10 p.m., Friday, 6 a.m.-8 p.m., Saturday 10 a.m.-8 p.m., and Sunday 1-10 p.m.

“Being back on campus with adjusting to the new norm has been a bit of a hassle but overall I'm glad they are trying to help maintain health regulations for the safety of students,” says senior Hailey Harris, a CRI student worker.

Students are required to wear some form of face covering upon entering the facility. Workers are expected to have the same form of protection. All gym equipment will be wiped down before and after each use. All equipment is spaced approximately 6 feet in order to follow Covid-19 guidelines.

Despite all of the changes, CRI will continue to offer a Fall Intramurals program. CRI will be hosting a different tournament Monday through Thursday on campus for the next three weeks. Tennis, ping-pong, spike ball, basketball, and kickball are just a few of the sports offered this Fall in the Intramurals Showcase.

You can sign up on IMLeagues online today for as many games as you'd like for a chance to win a brand new intramural championship t-shirt.

Campus Recreation and Intramurals (CRI) is staying in compliance with the new Covid-19 guidelines by moving the campus gym from the Student Recreation Center to the Armstrong Alumni Arena.

Pending the opening of campus, students were unsure of how the six foot rule would be implemented inside the gym. Before moving to the arena, the campus gym was comfortably set up inside the student recreation center, next to the campus post office. HOUSING GUIDELINES CHANGE DUE TO PANDEMIC

WHAT HOUSING RESIDENTS SHOULD KNOW ABOUT NEW GUIDELINES

BY REBECCA MUNDAY
Managing Editor

The University Housing Office recently made several changes to their community guidelines for the 2020-21 academic year in response to the COVID-19 pandemic. The updated guidelines were sent out to every residential student as an email attachment in early August.

The new guidelines deal with fire drills, approved and non-approved animals, guest visitation, community spaces, event spaces and illness procedures.

"The rules are applicable to everyone so people are supposed to know them," Brendan Mungwena, a senior in the economics program, who has been a resident assistant (RA) for three years, said.

Fire drills will now be virtual in order to limit the number of people entering or exiting the building at one time. The fire marshal assisted the housing office in coming up with a virtual training exercise that will be sent to all on-campus students via their Georgia Southern email address.

"In terms of fire drills, this year we will be doing educational initiatives by informing students of policies, procedures and prohibited items. This education may be interactive and passive in nature. We are still in the planning process for these initiatives," Nick Shrader, Director of Residence Life, said. Each resident will have to complete one training per semester.

The only spaces that are open to students are the laundry rooms, the Windward Commons kitchens and the computer areas in Windward Commons. The laundry rooms and kitchens have limited capacity signs on their doors. Other common area spaces are locked and unavailable for use because university housing cannot ensure social distancing in those spaces. The volleyball court and basketball courts are closed until further notice.

“THE RULES ARE APPLICABLE TO EVERYONE.”

BRENDAN MUNGWENA
Resident Assistant

Additionally, no campus clubs or organizations are allowed to use any of the event spaces within or on the grounds of any residence hall on campus.

The university housing office has also suspended all guest privileges until further notice.

The guest suspension means that unless a person is assigned to live within the unit, they are not allowed to enter it.

Students who test positive for COVID-19, show symptoms of COVID-19, or have come in close contact with someone who has COVID-19 must self-report to the CARES Center through the self-reporting form in their MyGeorgiaSouthern Portal or by phone at 912-478-2273.

Then, the CARES Center will notify the housing office so they can make the appropriate arrangements. "We Isolate the positive and symptomatic for 10 days and 24 hours fever-free since symptoms first began. We quarantine the contacts for 14 days since symptoms could appear during that time frame to make sure they stay non-symptomatic," Shrader said.

Jules Davis, a political science major, who became a RA this year, said she wouldn't even know if someone on her floor got COVID-19 because the whole process is confidential.

"Once you go into isolation, you're encouraged to go home," Davis said.

If students have circumstances that prevent them from going home, the university will relocate them to a designated relocation space somewhere else on campus for their isolation period where they can still take advantage of their meal plan. Students who remain on campus will only be allowed to leave their isolated living quarters to seek medical attention.

If a student has not been tested yet but they have symptoms of COVID-19, they will be asked to speak with Health Services about their symptoms and testing options. Then, they will be asked to quarantine at home until their results come in or until they have met these three criteria: 10 days since symptoms began, 24 hours fever free and symptoms have improved.

Students who have been in close

“ONCE YOU GO INTO ISOLATION, YOU'RE ENCOURAGED TO GO HOME.”

JULES DAVIS
Resident Assistant

contact with other students who have tested positive for COVID-19 will also be required to quarantine for fourteen days since the most recent date of contact. Close contact is defined by the housing community guidelines having spent more than 15 minutes or longer with someone while they were closer at a distance closer than six feet.

Asymptomatic roommates, who are considered in close contact with a COVID-19 positive individual, will be asked to quarantine in their room for fourteen days, according to Shrader.

If an isolated or quarantined student has an emotional support animal that must be walked, the individual must designate someone off campus to walk their emotional support animal. If the student cannot find someone off campus to walk their therapy dog, "In this situation we will have conversations with students to try and help them find a solution to this issue and it would be handled on a case by case basis," Shrader said.

If a student falls in any of the above three categories, a member of University Housing will reach out to them to discuss their next steps.

EVENT GUIDELINES

WHAT TO KNOW WHEN YOU GO

BY REBECCA MUNDAY
Managing Editor

Students who want to plan or attend any events this semester will want to be aware of the changes the Office of Student Activities (OSA) has made to the event guidelines for Fall 2020.

OSA laid out special guidelines for organizations to consider when planning events. If these guidelines cannot be met without sacrificing the integrity of the program, the event should be restructured or offered in a virtual format.

Organizations should make a plan to maintain social distancing throughout the event. They should also have ample human resources to make sure social distancing guidelines are met throughout the event.

Most indoor spaces have been preconfigured to meet capacity limits to ensure appropriate social distancing. For ballrooms and other large spaces, groups should work with

Office of Emergency Management (OEM) or Student Union staff to determine the proper layout in those areas. Meeting attendees should not rearrange rooms.

Organizers should also expect event spaces to have reduced capacity limits. They are encouraged to consider virtual formats for their events due to space availability. If an event involves an off-campus guest speaker, it is recommended that person present virtually whenever possible. The university purchased Zoom access for all students, faculty and staff, which can be accessed through the GeorgiaSouthern Portal.

When advertising for the event, organizers must clearly state all event participation guidelines. Then, the guidelines must be explained again at the time of the event.

Hand sanitizing stations including disinfectant wipes should also be available during the event.

OSA also recommends that event

If an event involves an off-campus guest speaker, it is recommended that person present virtually whenever possible.”

organizers set up a pre-registration or RSVP process to control the number of attendees.

When it comes to keeping track of event attendees, they recommend organizers write down the name and university email address of everyone who attends the event. Organizers can also collect this information in advance using Google Forms. Student organizations are not required to submit this information, but they should keep track of it in case the university must notify the attendees for contact tracing or other health reasons.

Tabling in the Student Union will be permitted on a limited basis in order to maintain social distancing. Only two people will be allowed to serve as hosts at a table at any one time.

Students, faculty, and staff can reserve meeting and event spaces via the online scheduling platform, 25Live. You may access 25Live by logging into your MyGeorgiaSouthern portal and clicking on the “Reserve a Room” link under the “Events and Planning” tile. Room capacities may change without prior notification. Occupancies for each available room will be communicated by the designated space approver.

If you have any questions about planning your event or managing the risk call the Office of Student Activities at 912-344-2504 or call the Office of Event Management at 912-344-2720.

OVERLOADED WASHER SETS OFF FIRE ALARM

WAKE-UP CALL FOR RESIDENTS OF WINDWARD COMMONS

BY REBECCA MUNDAY
Managing Editor

On Aug 30., a fire alarm made a deafening sound and emitted a flashing light in Windward Commons last night alerting all its residents to the possibility of a fire. One student folded his arms over the back of his head and complained about how loud the noise was. Dozens of students filed down the hallway and out the building onto the brick pathway between Windward and the Compass Point apartments.

After only about a moment, one of

THERE WASN'T A FIRE.”

NICK SHRADER
Director of Residence Life

the resident assistants reminded the swarm of students to social distance and spread “at least six feet apart.” She even suggested that if students hadn’t seen the campus at night, this might be the time to explore because there was not enough space for everyone to distance safely in front of Windward Commons.

Students spread out and speculated aloud if this was a drill or if there was a real fire. When the lights of a fire truck were seen in the back of the building, the question in everyone’s mind seemed to be answered. Two fire firefighters went into the west wing of Windward to investigate the problem.

“There wasn’t a fire. The smoke alarm and fire alarm went off due to a washing machine on the west side laundry room of Windward Commons. The washing machine was overloaded causing the motor to burn out and cause smoke setting off the alarm,” Nick Shrader, the Director of Residence Life, said.

While students waited, some called their parents and informed them of the situation at hand. Other students talked about what they were doing when the alarm went off, others wondered what happened and still others questioned when residents would be allowed back into their dorms.

Finally, two police officers came out of Windward to talk to the R.A.s that were watching the residents. After, the RAs let the residents back in descending order by floor about a half an hour after the ordeal started.

“Thank you to the residents for their cooperation in exiting the building promptly.” Shrader said.

A NIGHT OF LAUGHTER WITH GILBRAN SALEEM

UPB HOSTS COMEDIAN GILBRAN SALEEM AT ARMSTRONG CAMPUS

BY JAVANNA ROGERS
Inkwell Contributor

The University Programming Board (UPB) on Georgia Southern's Armstrong Campus brought Gibran Saleem to the Fine Arts Center on Thursday, Aug. 30. Over 50 guests were able to sit and enjoy the comedy show.

According to Gibran Saleem's website, gibransaleem.com, "Gibran Saleem was born in North Carolina and raised in Virginia in a Pakistani household. He started comedy while attending graduate school at New York University for Psychology. While attending school he was individually hand-picked as an MVP nominee on the national TBS Rooftop Comedy College Competition and was a 2-time recipient of the UCB diversity scholarship.

Saleem is the only comedian to ever be selected, as a finalist for both the Stand-Up NBC and NBC's Late Night program; where he was one of six individuals hand selected over 1000 submissions.

Saleem has been featured on MTV, TV Land, Popcorn Flix, PBS, CUNY TV, VOA, Elite Daily, and Cosmopolitan and performed his stand-up television debut on Gotham Comedy Live for AXS TV. He was the focus of an international documentary on NHK TV called "Asian Dreamers: Brown is Funny" and has been featured in festivals nationally across the states as well as winning 1st place in the Hoboken comedy festival. Saleem is a staple among college campuses and travels throughout the year. He can be seen on the next season of Better Things on FX by Louis CK and Pamela Adlon."

TIPS FROM AN EDITOR

FIND YOUR ZEN

Feeling unfocused can lead to poor productivity. If you're having a hard time focusing, take a moment to feel and measure your breathing. It will help you remember what you're doing and act purposefully.

FIND SOME TIME FOR SELF-CARE

Self-care isn't all face masks and bubble baths. It also means making difficult decisions to grow as a person. Don't procrastinate just to suffer later. If you know you feel better in a tidy space, keep things clean. Finding small things you can control can make you feel more relaxed than a face mask ever could.

LILA'S TIPS ON STRESS MANAGEMENT

T C B! TAKE CARE OF BUSINESS

Having a lot of tasks at hand can stress even the most level-headed person out. Make a list, carve out some time to do each task, then cross the items off with content.

TREAT YOURSELF!

Wear your coolest outfit, (mask-included) and have a photoshoot with yourself. Go get or give yourself a nice manicure. Buy or pick yourself some flowers. Compare and contrast the best sites to online shop. Even if you're low on funds, make a nice meal or dessert, or read a good book. Treating yourself doesn't have to be monetary. Giving yourself time to do whatever you want to do just as good, and there's no buyer's remorse afterward.

DO ABSOLUTELY NOTHING!

Sometimes the best thing to do is nothing at all. Enjoy.
